

States Uphold Right Of Internal Control On Intrastate Rates

Authority of Interstate Commerce Commission to Fix State Rates Attacked Before Court.

TEST CASE BROUGHT BY WISCONSIN STATE

Extreme Interest Centers in Hearing to Settle Interpretation of Transportation Act on Point.

Washington, March 11.—Authority of the interstate commerce commission under the transportation act to supervise railroad rates within the states was in turn denied and upheld in opening arguments today before the supreme court on the test case brought by the state of Wisconsin.

Attorneys for Wisconsin and the forty-two states joining in the proceedings declared the construction placed on the transportation act by the commission in exercising control over state rates to be "destructive of our dual form of government and contrary to the spirit of our constitution," and to amount to "unified control over commerce."

Counsel for the railroads, in upholding the authority of the commission, declared that the states which have refused to approve rate increases within their borders to the level of interstate rates as ordered by the commission "not only are injuring interstate commerce, but are claiming an unfair advantage of their sister states who have acted liberally in the public interest."

The forty-three states joining in the proceedings are attempting to obtain an order vacating the injunction granted by Federal courts to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, preventing any increase in rates below the interstate level. The railroad is seeking an order of increased freight and passenger rates within the state of Wisconsin as authorized by the interstate commerce commission. Permission was given the various states to file briefs and to be represented orally through their attorneys. They selected John E. Benton, general solicitor of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities commissioners, as their representative.

The importance attached to the case was illustrated immediately when the court allowed a total of nine hours for argument. Mr. B.
O'Brien, special counsel for Wisconsin, who opened for the appellants, barely concluded his presentation of the case today and it was estimated that the remaining argument late in the afternoon of next Tuesday.

"Abuse of Power."
The order of the interstate commerce commission affecting state rates, Mr. O'Brien argued, was based solely on the interstate rates below the interstate rates amounted to discrimination against interstate commerce and the order, he added, could not be sustained on this basis since supervision of strictly internal commerce was expressly reserved to the states under the constitution. The action of the interstate commerce commission was denounced by Mr. O'Brien as "in excess of jurisdiction and an abuse of power."

Section 15-A of the transportation act, under which the commission presumed to act, he said, did not

MEDIATION OFFER EXTENDED BY U. S. IN WAGE DISPUTE

Department of Labor Offers Services in Settlement of Controversy Between Packers and Employees.

TELEGRAMS ARE SENT TO BOTH DISPUTANTS

Action of Secretary Davis Follows Lengthy Conference With President.
Suggests Joint Discussion.

Washington, March 11.—The services of the department of labor in settlement of the controversy between packing house employees and the packing concerns growing out of proposed wage reductions were offered in telegrams sent tonight to the unions and packers by Secretary of Labor Davis.

Secretary Davis, who despatched the telegrams after a conference with President Harding, also requested the packers and the employees each to designate two representatives to meet with department of labor agents in an attempt to readjust the dispute which threatens to develop into a strike.

The telegram sent to Dennis Lane secretary of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America at Chicago, and which was practically identical in text with the one sent the five big packers, follows:

"The federal government is deeply concerned about the maintenance of industrial activities in full and uninterrupted operation and therefore desires to see that there be no interruption of the continuity of employment in the great packing industries. If the department of labor can be helpful in promoting understanding and can aid in any way to avoid the cessation of operations, such services by this department will be given most gladly."

"I am sending a like request to the employers and am acquainting them with this request to you. Surely there must be a just solution and the good offices of this department are tendered in the hope of finding that solution so essential to the promotion of the common good."

Strenuous Day.
Sending of the telegrams followed a day of strenuous work for the new secretary, in an effort to forestall the first big strike to loom on the horizon since the new administration took office.

New Brief Is Filed For Mary Pickford In Divorce Tangle

Minden, Nev., March 11.—District Judge Frank P. Langan has under consideration today a brief filed by Mary Pickford's attorney which contends that the attorney general of Nevada was without authority when he filed an action to have set aside the divorce granted to Mary Pickford from Owen Moore.

The brief contended that the state was represented at the trial by the court and that the court's action in granting the divorce was considered final. The brief also said that the attorney general had failed to disclose anything in the Nevada laws countenancing the theory that the attorney general has the right to review divorce cases.

Removal proceedings have been filed against Judge Langan in the legislature because of the alleged failure to perform certain judicial duties, and Miss Pickford's attorney filed his brief four days earlier than he had intended so that there would be no chance of interruption, no matter what the outcome of the removal proceedings.

TILLERY GRILLED IN BUNCO PROBE

Man Who Is Said to Have Been Head of Gang Several Years Ago Brought to Atlanta.

Mark Tillery, declared by officers to have been the head of the bunco ring in Atlanta several years ago, arrived in Atlanta at 2:45 o'clock Friday afternoon in custody of a United States deputy marshal, and was taken immediately to the federal building, where he was grilled by Solicitor General John A. Boykin and officials of the department of justice. The prisoner was first taken to the Fulton county workhouse, where he was held for a few days, before being taken to the federal building, where he was grilled
by Solicitor General John A. Boykin and officials of the department of justice. The prisoner was first taken to the Fulton county work-
house, where he was held for a few days, before being taken to the federal building, where he was grilled
by Solicitor General John A. Boykin and officials of the department of justice.

Mr. Tillery, a north Georgia farmer, who was arrested in a wiretapping swindle, went to El Paso and identified Tillery. Nations accompanied the prisoner and his federal escort to Atlanta. The woman who claimed to be Tillery's wife when he was arrested, came to Atlanta with him, and stated she was going to stand by him. Both refused to make any statement to newspaper reporters.

Further relief to the present inadequacy of Atlanta's office space is seen in the projected construction by George F. McGlawn, prominent local insurance man, of a seven-story office building on the property at 17-25 Houston street, just east of the Cantler building. The proposed improvements to cost approximately $500,000.

An interesting feature of this new development is that Mr. McGlawn secured the Houston street property from Ben J. Massell, in exchange for the old Ansley homestead in Ansley park, and a cash consideration. The home, situated on a commanding hill in the beautiful section there is one of the most imposing and sumptuous in the entire south and was purchased a year ago by Mr. McGlawn from R. L.
Ansley, the builder.

The property on Houston street has a frontage of 110 feet and a depth of 100 feet and holds at present a two-story brick structure.
The foundations of the building, however, were originally laid for a structure as high as seven stories, and Mr. McGlawn has begun plans for such a building.

The building will be used as headquarters for the George F. McGlawn & Co. Insurance agency, which has a chain of insurance offices in all the principal cities of the United States, and which has met a marked growth and expansion in recent years to the extent that more capacious quarters are now required for its local offices. The offices under Mr. McGlawn's supervision are located in all the principal points of the south, southwest and west.

The central location of the property and the need which has often been expressed for more office space in downtown Atlanta favor the new venture of Mr. McGlawn, since it is planned to rent all offices in the new structure not used by the insurance business.

Mr. Massell, who has acquired the old Ansley home in the negotiations, has not announced its disposition, but it is believed that a purchaser will easily be found for the handsome home, the luxurious fitting of whose interior and the remarkably beautiful setting in which it is located having given it a peculiar attractiveness.

HUSBAND JEALOUS WITHOUT REASON, ASSERTS WOMAN

Charges of Improper Relations With A. L. Campbell, Boarder in Home, Denied by Mrs. Williams.

COMMITMENT TRIAL
TO BE HELD TODAY

Woman Admits Giving Husband Two Tablets on Night of Death, But Says
They Were Aspirin.

Greensboro, Ga., March 11.—(Special.)—With the commitment trial of Mrs. Will W. Williams, Bennie Williams and A. L. Campbell, all charged with the murder of W. W.
Williams last week, scheduled to be held Saturday, it became known here late tonight that Mrs. Williams has admitted giving her husband two capsules, which she alleges contained aspirin, and a drink of whiskey on the night of his death, while she vigorously denied there had been anything improper in her relations with Campbell.

Sheriff Hixson is in possession of both the remaining capsules in the box from which the woman claims the others came, and a sample of the whiskey given Williams. Both the whiskey and capsules will be sent to Dr. Edgar F. Everhart, of Atlanta, Saturday to be analyzed.

Mrs. Williams again asserted she believed her husband had committed suicide, after being dependent for months. Seated in her cell in the Greensboro county jail, and with her voice broken with emotion, she produced a graphic picture of a distressed woman, who, she said, was unhappily married, and of unwarranted jealousy, she said.

"No Right to Be Jealous."
"My husband had no right to be jealous," she declared, "for there has never been anything other than proper relations between Mr. Campbell and me. The trouble in our home first started when Mr. Campbell's child, and after that, when he insisted that we allow him to board with us. My husband decided to take him."

"After he was with us, it is true that I gave him some attention, but no more than anyone would toward a boarder. I cared for Mr. Campbell's child, and after that, when he insisted that we allow him to
board with us. My husband decided to take him."

"But this was after Bennie had testified in the Campbell divorce case. She said she had been quarreling between the boy and his father concerning Bennie's relations with Mrs. Campbell Bennie gave at the trial. Relations became strained between us when my husband had absolutely no reason for his attitude."

The prisoner then told the sheriff of the occasion when she attempted to kill her husband about three weeks before his death. She hesi-tated several times on account of her emotion, and declared she was only telling for the incident so that "justice might take a true course."

"I wouldn't have treated a dog like my husband treated me. On the night I attempted to kill him it was only after he had cursed and accused me of false relations with him. I thought he seized a pistol, which I thought he had brought against his head and pulled the trigger twice. I had decided to end it all, and after I had killed him I planned to turn the pistol upon myself."

The night my husband became ill I did not know what to do to relieve his suffering. I gave him aspirin capsules, and after he had taken these, he asked for a drink of whiskey. He had brought home a bottle which he had brought from the boys to Greensboro. I sent two of the boys to Greensboro, but he died despite all we did for him."

Suicide, Claims Wife.
Mrs. Williams declared her husband had been depressed for a number of weeks and that she believed he committed suicide.
Williams died suddenly late Wednesday night of last week, after a long illness.

JAMES W. MADDOX TO RESIGN PLACE ON POLICE BOARD

Friends Claim That Supporters in Council of Former Chairman Will Decline to Accept Offer.

MADDOX IS ANSWERED
BY THOMAS GOODWIN

Effort Will Be Made to Get Fifth Ward Delegation Together on Compromise Candidate.

James W. Maddox announces that he will tender his resignation as chairman of the police board, from the council of the city of Atlanta.

His friends claim that his supporters in council will refuse to accept the resignation, thus giving the stamp of official approval to the questionable method by which he was inducted into that office.

Friends of Ellis Barrett, attorney, who received a dia vote with Maddox in the election in question, say that they are watching every move made by the Maddox faction, and that when his resignation is accepted Barrett will be elected to fill the vacancy.

Compromise Suggested.
Persons well informed in city hall politics assert that an effort will be made to have Alderman C.
R. Garrison and Councilmen Couch and Elberidge of the fifth ward meet and get together on some candidate who will be satisfactory to both sides, in which case either Barrett nor Maddox will be elected.

Attorney Thomas H. Goodwin, assailed by Maddox in the card in which he announced his resignation, replies to Maddox, declaring "it is marvelous how the gentleman could have fabricated or invented such a mass of untruthful matter in so short a time."

These were the developments of Friday in the controversy as to whether Maddox should be allowed to retain his seat on the board to be elected next Monday.

PLAN LEGISLATION TO PROTECT CHILD

Bill Will Be Introduced in Legislature Calling for Appointment of Children's Code Commission.

Legislative action looking toward a constructive program of child welfare work throughout the state of Georgia will be asked of the Georgia legislature by the Georgia Council of Social Agencies in session at the Ansley hotel here today. President Clara Woolford brought a state-wide committee to work for a bill calling for the appointment of a children's code commission by the governor.

The decision of the council to take this action followed a brilliant address of C. C. Carleton, of New York, secretary and director of the National Child Welfare league and ex-president of the Boston Children's Aid society, who stated that the undefended divorce is the greatest menace to the welfare of the children of America and to civilization.

Children Used as Pawns.
"In uncontested divorce proceedings," he stated, "the children are used as mere pawns on the chess-board of fate. The facts in the case are concealed cleverly by lawyers for both parents; only certain facts are allowed to come before the judge and the children are often awarded to the wrong parent by the biased action of the judge. The judge, on the order of Judge Hoffman's court in Cincinnati."

Mr. Carleton cited several instances in various states where a conservative "children's code" had been passed by the legislature, including laws calling for the licensing and inspection of every agency in the state that has the care of infants and children; the repeal of the limit of consent to 16 years; mother's pensions; more stringent marriage regulations; absolute non-support and desertion laws, "to be applied to children born out of wedlock as well as those born in wedlock."

SCENE OF TRAGEDY STAGED FOR JURY BY CLARA HAMON

Woman Arranges Furniture in Hotel Room Where Jake Hamon Received Fatal Shot.

DEATH-BED STATEMENT
QUOTED BY WITNESS

Doctor Says Jake Hamon Told Him Woman Shot Him As He Lay on Bed, Defenseless.

Ardmore, Okla., March 11.—Clara Smith Hamon, on trial here charged with the murder of Jake L. Hamon, today returned to the hotel room occupied by herself and Mr. Hamon, and, in the presence of the jury, rearranged the furniture as it was on the night of the shooting. A short time later, when taking of testimony of Dr. Walter Hardy, a subsequent statement of Hamon's to the effect that he was shot while lying in bed, also was quoted by Dr. Hardy.

While Dr. Hardy was on the stand the state offered in evidence the blood-stained undergarments of Hamon, which previously it has been said were burned to prevent his wife's seeing them.

Dr. Hardy testified that Mr. Hamon staggered toward him, pale of face, and kissed him on the forehead, in reply to the doctor's question as to whether he was willing to undergo the operation, he said, "I was going to die. I am weak, and I want to go to bed."

See Both Rooms.
Accompanied by Sheriff Garrett and Clara Hamon, the jury visited the hotel where Hamon was shot, first inspecting the room occupied by Clara Hamon and joined by a connecting door to the one occupied by Mr. Hamon.

Clara Hamon presently arranged the furniture and effects as near as possible to the location on the night of the shooting. It was noted that only the extreme effort did she maintain her composure, dropping to a chair just as soon as she had completed the few changes.

Dr. Hardy told of seeing for Mr.
Hamon when he came to the waiting room, and quoted an admonition given by Mrs. Hamon, thus:

"Doctor, take my right hand. I want you to promise me you never will reveal how I was shot, except in open court."

Mrs. Hamon Leaves Room.
As Attorney General Freeling dismissed the underclothing Hamon had worn and a gown he was placed in the hospital, both Mr. Jake Hamon and Clara went into their handkerchiefs.

Dr. Hardy said the hole in the underclothing and shirt corresponded with the wound; that the garment looked just the same.

Mrs. Hamon was unable to compose herself, and her son led her sobbing from the courtroom.
Judge Champion called a five-minute recess.

It was the first time Mrs. Jake Hamon had seen the garments. Previously statements by Hamon's friends had indicated they had been burned to keep the widow from seeing them.

Says Hamon Rallied.
Dr. Hardy said after the operation Hamon rallied and had the use of his faculties.

He said Clara Hamon came to the hospital the next morning and was permitted to see Hamon alone, the nurse being withdrawn.

"She did not stay more than two minutes, may be three," Dr. Hardy said. After Clara left, Dr. Hardy said he went in and Hamon said he was going to die.

"That's the woman that did the work. I was lying in the same position as I am now," he quoted Hamon as saying. Hamon then was lying on his back on the hospital cot.

Dr. Hardy said the bullet, which killed Hamon entered between the eighth and ninth ribs and lodged four inches lower at the back, penetrating the liver.

"During cross-examination, W. P.
McLean, of defense counsel, lay upon the floor and had the surgeon trace the bullet's course with a black pencil on his white shirt. Later he brought from the surgeon as with his arm banded and body bent forward, admission that if a person then had stood before Mr. McLean and fired, the bullet would have taken a similar course."

Railroad Officials Unite in Campaign For Cut in Payrolls

MEDIATION BOARD MEMBERS LEAVE FOR WASHINGTON

Strike Status Same As It Was Last Week, Following Bugg's Refusal to Present Road's Case.

RECEIVER PREDICTS
NORMAL SCHEDULES

Telegrams and Letters Received From Many Towns Telling of Condemnation of the Strike.

With the announcement of Colonel
B. L. Bugg, receiver of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, Friday night that he would not at any future date enter into strike mediation proceedings, predicting a normal schedule would be resumed within two weeks, and the departure from Atlanta for Washington of Judge Chambers and Whitehead Klutz, of the federal board of mediation, the controversy resumed the same status of last week.

After considering Commissioner had thrown away all opportunity to restore the railroad to operation, and to prevent further inconvenience of the public, in refusing the good offices of the mediators, but that the board would be willing to reopen the case should the railroad officials so desire, Colonel Bugg declared finally that he would not Chambers' assertion that the receiver enter the proceedings.

The receiver based his final decision on the claim that the least possible reduction in wages had been made in Judge Samuel L. Silbey's order and that he would not be in a position to negotiate with the board when it expected him to make concessions which the financial condition of the railroad would not permit.

Careful Consideration.
"When we reduced the wages of all our employees," said Colonel Bugg, "we did so after a careful consideration of our finances. After doing this, we made the least reduction which this condition would allow. You can readily understand now that we could only refuse the offer of the board to reopen the case after our declaration earlier in the day. Our hands are tied."

In support of his position that a reduction in wages was absolutely necessary, he said:

FINE RECORD MADE AT AUTO EXHIBIT

Total Attendance for Week Will Exceed 9,000 and Sales Have Exceeded All Expectations.

When the Great Southern Auto show closes its doors tonight after the final thousands pass through the gates, the record made by the automobile industry in the south will have been put back on the firm basis it occupied before the frenzy of war prosperity and before the financial unrest that accompanied the slump in the price of cotton.

This is the verdict of F. U. mer, chairman of the committee on advertising, who has had direct charge of keeping the entire section supplied with intimate information as to the progress of the show.

"Here was the task of this show," said Mr. Uimer Friday night. "We had to create an atmosphere in which the people would realize that the automobile business has returned to stability. The task was a tremendous one. The people in the business, the dealers, were suffering from a fright that had the psychological effect of making them believe that no one could be interested in automobiles under any conditions."

Have Blotted out Fright.
"We have blotted out that fright." Our records show that when we closed the show Thursday night, 7,100 persons had paid admission fees into the show. We confidently expect that our total paid admissions will number at least 9,500. That looks like there is still an interest in automobiles. It is particularly remarkable when it is known that the largest paid attendance at any previous automobile show in Atlanta—even in the heyday of prosperity —was but 7,500.

And these people haven't been mere sightseers. We have made a careful survey of results and the end of the week will show that at least 150 actual sales of cars have been made; a truly remarkable record for any automobile show this year.

UNION LEADERS PLAN FIGHT TO LAST DITCH

Roads Announce Plans to Apply Knife to All Salaries, Including Highest Executives.

Chicago, Ill., March 11.—Officials of western railroads here tonight unanimously confirmed reports during the day that general reductions in wages would be urged as part of their plan to restore the roads to a pre-war basis. They declared lower wages would pave the way for lower freight and passenger rates and said that the reductions in pay would begin with unskilled employees and would finally reach the highest executives.

Union leaders indicated their intention of fighting the proposed wage cuts to the last ditch. J. G.
Luhren, president of the American Train Dispatchers' association, asserted that the train sheets would show that the railroads were not economically managed and in a letter to Senator A. B. Cummins, chairman of the senate commerce committee, he called for a senatorial investigation of the transportation situation, "so to avert serious strife over wage reductions."

"Notices of proposed wage reductions on individual roads have been expected since the meeting of the railway executives here on February 13," said a statement issued by W. Jett Lauck, former secretary of the war labor board, and now consulting economist of the railroad unions. "It is part of the plan to deluge the United States labor board with a multitude of complaints and cannot be of much financial benefit to the railroads."

Time Element.
"One complaint after another must be considered by the labor board and a considerable period of time must elapse before a sufficient number of decisions, even if favorable can be procured by the railroads.
The New York financial district has already recognized this tendency.
In spite of the fact that the proposed wage reductions and the sanction by the government to advance payments of its grants to the carriers, railroad securities have reached another low level on the stock exchange."

"This would not be so if the railroad executives were straightforward and sincere in their labor policy, and if their plans were directed by the most intelligent and far-seeing of the heads of roads. If financial relief, and not the breaking down of the labor organizations were the object, the railroads in a certain area or district would not notify the employees of proposed wage cuts, but would invite their representatives to meet the representatives of the carriers in conference, and then, if no agreements could be reached, a complaint covering a large number of railroads and their employees be brought before the labor board."

"Misguided Group."
"The reason concerted action for wage reductions is not taken now is that the Association of Railway Executives is dominated by a short-sighted and misguided group who are more interested in breaking down labor organizations on individual roads than they are in securing wage reductions. Their zeal against labor unions leads them unconsciously to neglect what the more rational railway executives clearly perceive to be the financial situation."

Right to Remarry Denied Principals in Divorce Suits Savannah, Ga., March 11.—(Special.)—A new feature—in addition to unprecedented numbers of cases —this week is the notable action of Chatham county juries in handling divorce cases. In several instances the juries have refused to grant parties the privilege of re-marrying, stating as the cause for this refusal that the plaintiffs or defendants, as the case may be, who are different enough to be absent from court when the case is heard, should not be turned loose to lightly enter another marriage contract. "By default" cases will not be as easy in future if other juries follow the precedent set by this term's juries.

YAP CONTROVERSY STATUS THE SAME

Diplomatic Exchanges Bring Argument No Nearer Settlement--Next Move Up to U. S.

Washington, March 11.—Diplomatic exchanges between the American and Japanese governments concerning the status of the Pacific cable center of Yap have left the situation unchanged and it remains for the Harding administration to dictate the next step.

Japan's reply to the protest against Japanese control of the island sent by the Wilson administration through the American embassy at Tokio is understood to have contained a reiteration of the Japanese claim to exclusive jurisdiction by reason of the mandate awarded by the supreme council.

As to Japanese control of the former German cables centering in the island, against which the American government particularly protested, Japan is said to adhere to the principle of free use of the cables by all persons, but with operation and control remaining under the power that is in possession of the ends of the cables.

Japan holds that this arrangement exists in the case of the cables that run from the American-owned island of Guam, in the Pacific, to Yokohama, Japan. The American company which laid the cable, it claims, admitted the right of Japan to control the end which was landed in Japan with America controlling the end in Guam.

The Japanese view also is understood to be that since direct cable communication between the United States and Asia by way of Guam and Manila already exists, the line from Guam to Asia via Yap is only an indirect overflow connection unnecessary in ordinary times and that therefore settlement of the question of control is not urgent.

Meanwhile, it is suggested that since the league of nations council has referred the American protest addressed to it to the allied nations a reply may come from that quarter which may contain the germ of a basis for adjustment.

One incidental result of this suspension may be the postponement of a settlement by direct negotiation of the issue between Japan and The Netherlands arising from the claim of the Dutch government to control one of the former German cables extending from Yap to the Dutch East Indies.

VIVIAN TO FIGHT SEPARATE PEACE

France Views Probability of U. S.-German Agreement With Alarm--Senate Being Sounded.

BY FRED S. FERGUSON.

United News Staff Correspondent. Washington, March 11.—The primary object of the visit of Rene Viviani, former French premier, to this country, late this month is to endeavor to prevent the writing of a separate peace between America and Germany.

Viviani is coming as the official representative of his government, ostensibly to extend greetings to President Harding, as the new American executive. But back of Viviani's visit is a purpose of far greater import than a mere exchange of pleasantries, according to expert opinion here.

Trying Conditions.

Owing to the continued deadlock on the reparations question, Europe's economic condition is becoming constantly more trying. The allies feel that had America been represented at the reparations conference which just closed in London, occupation of additional German territory would not have been necessary. They believe the Germans would have come to terms and under present European conditions the French feel that declaration of a separate peace by the United States would be a terrible blow to French prestige.

But it is apparent that the prevailing belief in allied diplomatic circles and even among pro-league republicans is that the thing the new senate is most likely to do is pass the Knox resolution, or declare separate peace with Germany in some form.

Justified on Job.

Ambassador Jusserand has been a close observer of developments in Washington, and there is no doubt in the minds of some republican officials who will have much to say in the discussion of international affairs that realization of the part of the French that establishment of a separate peace was extremely likely prompted them to send Viviani to Washington.

Some prominent republicans among the pro-leaguers denounce the prospects of a separate peace as "showing yellow," but admit that unless something happens to bring about a marked change in the majority sentiment, such a resolution will probably be put through.

Bride of Stokes Kept Surrounded By Spy System

Servants Tell How Every Kiss She Gave Is Branded on Brains.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

United News Staff Correspondent.

New York, March 11.—Whenever Helen Elwood Stokes received a phone call or answered a phone or changed her dress for dinner there was someone in the household intelligence service, composed of maids, nurses, waitresses, cooks, butlers and chauffeurs, to spy upon the young bride of the elderly William Earl Dodge Stokes and make definite mental note of the incident.

Did the pretty Mrs. Stokes receive a phone call from a man, John Mosby, the negro butler, marked it ineffaceably on the tablets of his memory. Did she divest herself of her house gown on a given day at 5:25 in the evening, some one of the servants will surely recall the time and the circumstances and just how little she wore, for the flunkies in the house of Stokes were blessed with memories of singular retentiveness.

Branded on Brain.

There were some things that John Mosby could not recall on the witness stand in Stokes' suit for a divorce in which seven correspondents are named, but the kisses and embraces he claims to have seen registered on his mind like the brand on the hide of a steer.

Francis Beard, a chauffeur, discharged at the same time that Mosby left the Stokes ménage, also recalled some of the events which the negro butler was called to prove. He and Mosby surveyed the house on one occasion, he said, and satisfied themselves that Mrs. Stokes had gone into her bedroom with George Schroeder, a prosperous looking engineer who sat in court near Mrs. Stokes wearing a look of enjoyment as he listened to the record of his role in the trial.

The butler told of witnessing a kiss and embrace, which he said was mutual, and coincided between Mrs. Stokes and Schroeder on the visit Schroeder is alleged to have paid Mrs. Stokes at the summer home, Long Branch, N. J., eight years ago.

Still in an affectionate attitude, having their arms about one another, the couple walked across the porch and into the cottage through the French windows, Mosby told the supreme court.

Inspiration and Art.

Valentine Kubicki, a chauffeur, took the stand. He had been employed by the late S. Montgomery Roosevelt, a portrait artist and whisky agent, who thus combined art and inspiration so well as to have a studio of his own and the means of moving in a very wealthy circle. Kubicki said he carried Mrs. Stokes to Roosevelt's apartments on various occasions and usually let her down two blocks from her own home on the return trip. Once he walked into the studio and saw Roosevelt sitting before an easel working on a nude portrait of a pretty woman smoking a cigarette.

On another chair sat Mrs. Stokes, the chauffeur said, and although she was not dressed in her walking suit, still she did have on conventional if informal raiment. Her posture was strikingly similar to that of the figure which Roosevelt was painting. The life of an elderly millionaire's beautiful young bride, if this case is a fair example, is one of restricted peace and authority for the servants, who were there theoretically to obey her commands and render her respect, were busy with their own suspicions and appear to have placed themselves on terms of personal equality.

Mrs. Stokes is learning how Nicky Arnstein felt when huge crowds followed him from court to court on his return from his famous hideout. The crowds that batter in water against the balliffs outside the court room doors for a glimpse of the young wife are increasing, not abating, and the case has hardly begun.

DUPRE BANQUET CLOSES BIG REO CONVENTION

More Than Hundred Dealers Guests of C. W. DuPre, of Reo Atlanta Company.

More than one hundred representatives of Reo distributing organizations in the southeast were the guests of C. W. DuPre, president of the Reo Atlanta and Reo Macon companies, at a delightful banquet at the Capital City Club Friday evening.

The banquet brought to a close the sales convention which Sales manager Rueschaw of the Reo Motor company of Lansing has conducted here today. The table was unquestionably one of the best decorated of any table ever spread in Atlanta. There is no wonder that this was true, for it was done under the personal supervision of Mrs. DuPre whose lively interest and assistance was one of the big factors in the success of the convention.

J. E. Brown, salesmanager for the Atlanta company acted as toast master and as his reputation for a success. The round table discussion participated in by Reo distributors from various parts of the south was one of the most interesting moments of the week, and possibly only eclipsed by the personal talk delivered by Mr. Rueschaw, who assured his distributors of the factory's loyal support and hearty co-operation.

Predicts Shortage.

In touching upon the automobile market, Mr. Rueschaw cited several pertinent facts concerning the production of the various factories during the past few months, the time required to again reach a normal production and the unmitigated revival of business now upon us, which will create a shortage of cars not later than April.

"Automobile production for the past several months has been running short of normal by 150,000 cars per month. Dealers stocks have been greatly reduced. The market is opening up. Sales are now exceeding production, and with the revival of the building trades and other constructive industries that are now taking on new life, there is no question but what there will be a shortage of cars.

"Automobile factories that have been closed cannot get open and running on a normal basis for many months, not only because of the difficulties attending opening their own plants, but of their various sources of supplies as well. Even the Reo factory, which has not been closed a day, except for seven days during the Christmas holidays, it is now impossible to increase production to care for orders that are coming in," said Mr. Rueschaw, as he urged the dealers to prepare to meet the situation that is facing them.

Movies of Reo Factory.

Following Mr. Rueschaw's able talk to his southeastern sales organization, the assembly was given a trip through the Reo organization via the movies.

The organization, the workmen of the buildings and the detail of many of the processes of forging, machinery and assembling the large portion of Reo cars and speed wagons which are manufactured in their forty-acre plant at Lansing was a revelation to many who had never visited the factory.

It told a story impossible to tell in words, and did it effectively, in a very short time—at least it seemed short even though it was a six-reel film.

Warrenton, Ga., March 11.—(Special.)—Another city is making a violent protest against the special rate of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company. Brewers to Wait Before They Put Any Kick in Beer

No Prescriptions to Be Filled Until Government Publishes Regulations.

BY JOHN GLEISSNER,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, March 11.—Regulations will be issued in April which will permit breweries to sell beer containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol, to be used for medicinal purposes, according to officials of the bureau of internal revenue.

Meantime, Prohibition Commissioner John Kramer warns that brewers which sell real beer before they have obtained permits under the new regulations will be violating the law, and will be subject to arrest and prosecution. The rules will remain the same as they have been, Kramer explained, until they have been amended to conform to the opinions of Attorney General Palmer.

These opinions were that beer and wine may be prescribed by physicians in any quantities they consider necessary for the treatment of patients. Officials discounted stories that brewers were getting ready to sell beer, in anticipation of the new ruling. Near-beer, they said, is made in the same manner as beer, containing 2 or 4 per cent of alcohol, and is "de-alcoholized" to reduce the alcoholic content.

Prohibitionists are expected to ask congress to amend the Volstead act in a manner to prevent use of beer and wine as medicine, unless it is prescribed by a physician, and to give no indication that they believe they should be overruled. Wayne B. Wheeler, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, said Daugherty would be asked to change the ruling. Wheeler also said states which do not now prohibit use of beer—nine in number—will start to pass laws, and that an attempt will be made to amend the Volstead law to prevent use of beer.

Government attorneys, it is known, have privately held the view that an attempt to prohibit use of beer and wine for medicine would be unconstitutional. The prohibition amendment, they pointed out, forbids only the use of intoxicating drinks for beverage purposes.

AT AUTO EXHIBIT

have been attained. Each exhibitor has made a list of prospects, people who have shown a peculiar interest in cars and who are bona fide prospective purchasers. As soon as the show closes these agents will start follow up campaigns and results of this show will continue to pour in throughout this year.

1,000 Dealers Attend

"Now, here's something else. We sent out 2,500 invitations to recognized dealers of the south to attend this show. The exhibitors had been afraid that dealers would be loath to come, due to trade conditions, but our registration books show that more than 1,000 of the dealers actually attended the show and every one of these dealers have either bought cars or will buy cars as a result. It is undoubtedly the largest ratio of response to invitations ever recorded."

"And there's one more thing that must be considered. More than 100 general officers of national automobile concerns visited Atlanta during the week. These men are leaders in the nation's most vital industries. Each one of these gentlemen left Atlanta profoundly impressed with the wide awake business spirit of the south.

"When anyone starts the old cry about southern slothfulness they'll never find any encouragement from these men. The show has been of incalculable value in this regard."

No plans have been made for any special features for the last hours of the show. Every exhibit will remain in place until the last minute. There will be the usual concerts by the Killies band and Duggan's jazz artists and there'll undoubtedly be a big cigar party by every single exhibitor to make the final day the biggest day of the show.

Bolshevik authorities have proposed eliminating some of the thirty-five letters of the Russian alphabet.

TELLS OF WORK DONE FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

Pitcher Denies Charge Most Soldiers Are Sent to Private Hospitals.

There are 3,033 former service men in hospitals in the fifth district, comprising Georgia, Tennessee, Florida and the Carolinas, and only 553 of this number are not in government hospitals, declared Dr. George S. Pitcher, assistant supervisor of the district for the United States public health service, in denying charges often made that most service men are sent to private hospitals. He spoke at a joint meeting of all Atlanta posts of the American Legion and representatives of posts in Decatur, Marietta, Fairburn and Conyers at the chamber of commerce Friday night.

In the district there are 13 government hospitals, he said, all filled to capacity except two, reserved for special cases. Of the cases, 2,278 are tubercular and 177 are mental, and all of the latter will be in government hospitals before mid-spring, he declared. There are no uremic cases, not being cared for in hospitals.

The United States department of vocational training is instructing 5,000 rehabilitated soldiers in the fifth district, and about 50,000 throughout the country, declared Mr. Bryson, district vocational training officer. The training is being extended to include the deaf, blind and feeble-minded.

Others who spoke at the meeting were H. A. Wallerstein, representing the United States war risk insurance bureau, and Basil Cockbridge, former state commander of the Legion. Asa W. Candler, president, State Commander A. L. Henson was expected to be present, but he did not arrive.

administration assumed office.

The action of Secretary Davis understood to have been taken with the full sanction of President Harding, who was informed yesterday of the decision of the packing house employees to call for a strike referendum as a result of the announcement by the packers that wages would be cut approximately 12 1/2 per cent. A memorandum left at the white house yesterday by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, was referred to Secretary Davis, who arrived at his office at 7 o'clock this morning in order to thoroughly familiarize himself with the situation before attending the cabinet meeting at 11 o'clock.

The matter was discussed at the cabinet meeting, and at the suggestion of President Harding, Secretary Davis conferred with him again this afternoon, when the president placed the entire matter in the secretary's hands.

Secretary Davis later conferred with Secretaries Wallace and Hoover and then transmitted the telegrams offering the services of the department to aid in adjusting the differences.

EMPLOYEES MAKE PROPOSAL.

Chicago, March 11.—If the federal department of labor can obtain from the meat packers of Chicago a promise to defer enforcement of their new wage and hour adjustment, effective Monday, the employees also will defer strike balloting. It was announced tonight by Dennis Lane, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America.

Mr. Lane made this announcement on being informed of the offer from Washington of mediation by the department of labor.

"I note," he said, "that there is no reference whatever to our existing agreement with the packers which we hold to be still in force, but which the packers abrogated. We mentioned this agreement prominently in our message to the president."

"We have always been ready and willing," continued Mr. Lane, "to meet with the department of labor authorities. That's because it is this branch of the federal government which negotiated our last agreement with our employers. We shall be glad to meet any one Mr. Davis designates."

No Effect on Prices.

A statement issued by the American Association of Meat Packers today said that the possible strike of stockyard workers had had no effect on the meat market.

"While live pork prices have risen 7 cents a pound in Chicago in two weeks, there has been no change in the other big meat centers. The small packers and the resultant competitive bidding of butchers who wanted to lay in a large stock."

UPSHAW TO SPEAK ON ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF DOW

Congressman W. D. Upshaw, representing the 5th Georgia district, has accepted an invitation to deliver the oration at the anniversary celebration of the birth of Neal Dow, pioneer prohibitionist. The celebration will be held on March 20, at Portland, Maine, and Mr. Upshaw will deliver a number of addresses in the state and New England States under the auspices of the Christian citizenship league.

The distinction conferred upon the Atlanta congressman by the New England admirers of Neal Dow, is looked upon as a tribute to Mr. Upshaw's power as a speaker and his devotion to the temperance cause. The fact that he is one among the few southern orators who have been extended to the celebration of the Dow anniversary, also adds to the honor conferred.

At a recent address delivered by Mr. Upshaw at Winchester, Va., The Evening Star, of that city, in an editorial, said: "The address and the following unique characterization of the Georgia congressman William D. Upshaw of Georgia, charmed an audience that filled the auditorium to overflowing despite a heavy snow storm."

Referring to the Atlanta congressman as the "Georgia Cyclone," it was stated that he fully won and justified the appellation. "It has been said," continued The Star, "that Upshaw is a combination of Sam Jones and Billy Sunday. But with the keen irony and biting sarcasm of Sam Jones, and the vigor and punch of Billy Sunday, many thought the Georgia congressman had more sparkling wit and sheer eloquence than either of them. And with it all there was a total pungent putting of truth that made a deep impression upon the people."

BROOKS' TIGERS GIVEN SEVERE SENTENCES

Quitman, Ga., March 11.—(Special.)—Judge W. Baum has been handing out what are here considered severe sentences for the shine makers this week, believing that chain-gang sentences will break up the business quicker than fines.

Abrams Timmons, an aged negro, was tried and fined $500 and twelve months on the gang.

When Sheriff Clanton went to Timmons' home he is said to have admitted that he was making shine and that it was a very remunerative business. He showed the sheriff the lard can still in the kitchen and helped him to destroy the wine and buck he had on tap. The whiskey, it was testified, was found to contain a large amount of potash and to be very dangerous.

GASOLINE FILLING STATION BANNED BY MAYOR'S VETO

Mayor Key on Friday afternoon vetoed a resolution passed by city council last Monday allowing A. H. Harper to install a gasoline filling station at Gordon street and Lucile avenue and to lower the curb and sidewalk for the purpose of providing convenient access and exit.

The proposed gas station has been bitterly fought by members of three churches in close proximity to it. Their first protest was before the street committee, where they lost, but a minority report was offered and council referred the question back to the committee. The fight was repeated again and this time Mr. Harper lost. Then the minority took the battle back to council, which adopted the resolution favoring the filling station by the vote of 21 to 9.

Friday the church people appeared for the third time and petitioned the mayor to veto council's action. A large delegation presented its arguments Friday morning and on Friday afternoon when the mayor heard the side of the owner.

As a compromise Mr. Harper offered to close his station on Sunday during the hours of church services. This was not acceptable to the church people, who are opposed to the station being installed at all. The applicant was represented by Attorney Paul Etheridge, Earl Carman, lawyer and member of the Gordon Street Presbyterian church, J. E. Wornack, of the Calvary Methodist church and Dr. C. F. Tate, pastor of the Gordon Street Baptist church, presented the arguments in opposition.

Pleasure over the action of Mayor Key in vetoing the filling station resolution, was expressed in resolutions adopted at a meeting of the Gordon Street Baptist Sunday school, held Friday night at that church. The resolution thanked the mayor and the councilmen for opposing the petition, against which the Gordon Street Baptist church had fought. The resolution was signed by Mrs. J. M. Seignious, president of the Sunday school; Mrs. R. W. Starr, secretary; Franklin F. Hillburn, the teacher and Rev. C. J. Tate, pastor of the church.

COMMISSIONER ESTILL SPEAKS HERE SUNDAY

Will Discuss the Salvation Army Service Program for 1921.

The Salvation Army at Home and Abroad will be the subject of Commissioner Thomas Estill, territorial commander, department of the south, of the Georgia Baptist Tabernacle Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Commissioner Estill, accompanied by Colonel A. M. Damon, field secretary of the Salvation Army, will arrive in Atlanta this morning, and will be greeted at the train by Lieutenant Colonel Joseph Atkinson, divisional commander of the south, with headquarters in Atlanta, and members of his staff.

Commissioner Estill has been identified with the Salvation Army since before its name was changed from the "Christian Mission." He has served the Army in all parts of the world, his assignments including posts in British South Africa, New Zealand, New South Wales, Scotland and the United States. For the past twelve years he has been in charge of the department of the west, with headquarters in Chicago.

Mayor James L. Key will preside at the meeting Sunday afternoon. The program for the day includes a service program for 1921, a report on the work of the department of the west, and a report on the work of the department of the south. Dr. C. E. Wilmer, a prominent Atlanta minister, and John A. Manget, are on the program for short addresses. An address by Mrs. Estill will close the meeting.

REV. CHARLES L. BASS REPORTED IMPROVING

OPTIMISM SHOWN BY HAGAN & DODD IN NEW BUILDING

There is a lot of difference between theoretical optimism and practical optimism. It does not take much money or courage to deliver a long oration expressing confidence in the future of business, but it does take real faith in business as a whole and in your own business in particular, to keep right on with your plans for expansion when trouble clouds obscure the sun a little.

The Hagan & Dodd company is today constructing a new $100,000 factory which they expect to occupy about June 1st. Gus Dodd, vice president and treasurer of the company, was recently asked if he did not regret the fact that this construction was under way.

"Regret it, certainly not," said Mr. Dodd. "I am re-energized from our former expansion program, we are daily adding new features to this building. This concern has gone through two wars, three panics, four and a half cent cotton and is still doing business at the old stand. Business conducted upon sound business principles need fear no flurries such as we have just gone through. If you will look about you will see that nearly all of the soundest business men have not allowed this short period of depression to interfere with their plans for expansion. It's time for action and money spent in expansion today will reap the spender more handsomely than at any other time."

Mr. Dodd's view point expresses clearly the feeling of the practical optimist, the man who not only believes in the absolute stability of business, but backs that belief by an unceasing expansion program.

WOMAN IS INDICTED FOR MALPRACTICE

Officers Claim Mrs. Smith Had Agreed to Operate on Policewoman.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Smith, who was arrested at her home on Peachtree road early in January by county officers who were working with City Policewomen Mrs. J. C. Davis and Mrs. Evans, was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury Friday on a charge of a misdemeanor. She is accused of malpractice.

At the time of the arrest of Mrs. Smith, who gave her age as 72 years, she was released on a large bond. It was claimed by the arresting officers that Mrs. Smith had agreed to operate on Mrs. Davis and that Mrs. Smith had certain metal instruments out on a table when the officers "raided" the place and took Mrs. Smith into custody.

The alleged operation of which Mrs. Smith was indicted occurred December 16, of last year.

Two true bills charging L. S. Tyson, a negro doctor, with making fraudulent benefit claims to enable beneficiaries of the Industrial Life and Health Insurance company to collect, were returned by the grand jury.

It is charged in the indictments that Tyson certified to a fraudulent claim to enable Will Palmer to collect $50.00, and to a fraudulent claim to enable Hattie Battle to collect $5.00.

Committees were appointed by Judge Hutcheson from the DeKalb County Bar association to arrange an appropriate memorial for the two men. Members of the committees were Paul Lindsey, Carl N. Guess and Ralph McClelland, for Mr. Field, and Daniel P. Phillips, A. M. Brand and A. J. Steel, for Mr. Norton.

FARM FEDERATION TO ORGANIZE BUREAU

Meeting of Cotton and Agricultural Agencies of Dixie to Be Held Here.

Assistance of the American Farm Bureau federation in forming a cotton marketing organization was asked in a resolution unanimously adopted at the closing session of the Georgia Farm Bureau federation at the Piedmont hotel Friday.

The resolution asked James R. Howard, president of the national organization, to appoint a committee to call a conference of all cotton and agricultural agencies in the south.

The meeting is to be held in this city, not later than May 3, of this year. President Howard replied that the national organization was forming a great grain marketing organization on lines similar to those proposed to help the cotton farmers, and that he believed the national federation would support the move in the cotton belt.

R. A. Kelley, of Tennessee, was elected president of the Georgia Farm Bureau federation, and J. B. Reeves, of Covington, was elected vice president. James W. Morton, of Athens, was elected to represent this state at the national convention of the American Farm Bureau federation, and was also named chairman of the state advisory committee.

Civilian Instructors Paid From Army Funds Not Exempt From Tax

Compensation of civilian instructors who are paid from army appropriations is not exempted from federal taxation, according to a telegram received Friday morning by the local internal revenue office from E. H. Batson, acting deputy commissioner of internal revenue at Washington.

The ruling was made at the request of the local revenue office because of many inquiries arising from government instructors in southern army camps. Some had claimed exemption because of the fact that they were paid from army funds. Under section 213B of the internal revenue act of 1918, it was declared, their income from such source is not exempt.

Next Tuesday, March 15, is the final day for making income tax returns and paying the initial installment. The offices of the department in the postoffice building are continually crowded with taxpayers, and many additional workers have been assigned to the task of receiving the returns.

Real Estate Board Urges Home-Building As Rent Solution

Construction of single dwellings was the solution suggested for the lowering of rents by speakers at the regular luncheon of the Atlanta Real Estate Board Thursday, when Atlantans were urged to buy vacant lots and build.

Following the shortage of houses, it was said, there is no hope for a reduction in rents for several months. Some reductions can be expected September 1, when a great number of leases will expire, said the realtors, but rents cannot be expected to return to a pre-war scale.

In exhorted the building of single dwellings. Ward Wicht, vice president of the realty board, said: "Buy a vacant lot and build your own home. Don't delay, building materials probably have reached their low point and some of them have started to go up again. With the passage of the bond issue and the large building program it contemplates labor and materials probably will be more expensive later. During the next 30 days probably will be the most profitable time for several months in which to let contract for construction of a home."

DRAUTZBURG GOES ON HIS FIRST RAID IN MILTON COUNTY

Federal Narcotic Inspector W. L. Drautzburg qualified Friday as a "branch-walker," as a country still raider is commonly known among the gentry of the moonshine industry, and for the first time he saw a real distilling plant, completely equipped, and set up ready to operate in the woods.

Inspector Drautzburg is one of the youngest members of the prohibition department in the southeast, but has been in the narcotics service for several years. His duties have been to make narcotics raids and check narcotics sales, in various sections of the south. His headquarters at present are in Macon, but he has recently been very active in a campaign against whiskey and dope smugglers in Florida.

Eugene Hardeman, assistant prohibition supervisor, decided Friday morning to take Officer Drautzburg on a still hunt in Milton county, just beyond the Chattahoochee. Officers National and Hicks accompanied them after searching along the river and smaller streams, the party discovered a 50-gallon still, near which was found two gallons of beer. The outfit was destroyed. Ownership of the plant is under investigation.

Oxtails With Vegetables

Divide the oxtails at the joints of the bone on the thick end, while at the thin end leave two joints together. Soak them in warm water for one hour, changing it several times. Drain and whip and then lay them in a brazier lined with slices of bacon, onions, carrots, salt, pepper and garnished bouquet (celery, parsley, bay leaves, thyme). Moistened with sufficient bouillon to cover them, also a few crushed tomatoes. Cook for about four hours. Strain the broth through a fine sieve, skim off the fat and reduce it to the consistency of a light gravy, then pour it in a stewpan with the pieces of well trimmed oxtails. Simmer, then turn it on a dish, arranging it high, and garnish with cooked fresh vegetables, as carrots, turnips, small onions.

THE MAYOR NOT ALONE.

Stinging under the rebuke administered for his participation in Monday's scandal, and he breathlessly swore in a police commissioner of his line of thought, while the very vote was under a challenge which later proved that the commissioner was not elected, Mayor Key is considerable enough to say that the Constitution is a "nuisance," and that he "sometimes" thinks the "nuisance" laws ought to be amended so that they could be invoked against it.

Whether or not the mayor refers to the Atlanta Constitution or to the constitution of the state, he does not say, but the presumption is that he refers to this newspaper. This, though, is by no means clear, since his participation in the mad rush to swear in a police commissioner who was not elected, indicates that his contempt for the one is about on a par with that for the other.

However that may be, and even though the mayor refers to this newspaper, we find consolation in the fact that the city is aroused as never before over this abominable proceeding, which was a threat to the liberty, the freedom and the security of every man and woman in the city, for if a man can be sworn in public office without having been elected and then told that he is "in" and "can't be helped," then neither life nor property is safe.

Fortunately, however, the mayor changed his mind when The Constitution and others threw the light of publicity on the transaction and exposed it in its bare nakedness.

No wonder the mayor later asked Mr. Maddox to "resign."

As to the mayor regarding The Constitution as a "nuisance," it will perhaps interest him to know that he is not the only one in the city of Atlanta who thinks that way about The Constitution.

His opinion is shared by every thief, thug, bunco gangster and crook in Atlanta.

None of them like the efforts of The Constitution to put the police administration of this city on a safe and sane basis, and to break the grip of the political cabal that is endeavoring to lay violent hands on the police department for its own selfish purposes.

No wonder the grand jury warns the people and entreats with council!

No wonder the solicitor general of the circuit pleads with council not to impede his effort to bring the crooks, the bootleggers and the bunco gangsters to justice, by putting on the police board men who have been identified in one way or another in their transactions.

No doubt the mayor thinks the grand jury and the solicitor general are also "nuisances."

And reduced to its last analysis that must be his opinion of the better public sentiment of the city on this subject.

We are at least in good company!

THE WORKING SPIRIT.

"Forget your troubles, and work," says William C. Durant, now a millionaire motor maker, in The Detroit Times, and to that he adds: "You're through only when you're dead. You've got a chance until your heart stops beating."

It is stated that he started as a cigar salesman at 19, and is now 59, having piled up a fortune of $134,000,000, but he is still in harness, and working, in a measure, as hard as ever.

"It is work," he says, "that keeps the life in you; and there's work for old, as well as young."

That's the spirit that doesn't contemplate a chimney corner easy chair, and never lets one drift into the has-been class. It goes right along with Time and Opportunity and takes its part, as far as may be, in the great work of the world—a worker to the last.

And in this connection The Portland Oregonian presents another notable instance of never being too old to work, or learn:

"Jasper N. Miller, 80 years old, says a man is never too old to learn. He has been teaching in the rural schools of Lane and Douglas counties for the last two or three years and is now enrolled in a business college here. He says he intends to finish a bookkeeping course begun many years ago. Mr. Miller is a pioneer of Oregon and has taught school most of his life."

Instances multiply of world-workers who never seem to grow old; and it is this working spirit that keeps them young. They haven't time to sit in the sand by the roadside and wonder where the world is going! They're going along with it, and keeping step as they can with the advancing procession.

They fight their trouble with work, for their motto is—"Through only when you're dead."

And that's what helps to keep the world's work going.

PICKETING.

A news dispatch from Boston says the national executive committee of the socialist party in session in that city has decided that "the white house will be picketed by socialists in connection with the campaign to be conducted at Washington in the interests of amnesty for Eugene V. Debs and other political prisoners."

In making this announcement a spokesman for the committee said, according to the report, that "no conflict with the authorities in carrying out the picketing plans was anticipated as it was understood the Washington authorities did not interfere in peaceful picketing."

There is nothing gratifying in any of this—neither in the announcement of the plan to "picket the white house" nor in the expression of confidence that Washington authorities will not interfere with it.

There ought to be a stop put to this whole "picketing" business.

It is fundamentally wrong both in principle and purpose.

It is not democratic, but exactly the opposite; it is nothing more nor less than a species of coercion, and contrary to the theory of democratic government and the smooth running of the processes of the law and legal institutions.

It is all well enough for a group of citizens—members of some particular cult or party, or school of thought—to say that the streets in front of the capitol, or the white house, or the home of a senator or a judge, is a public thoroughfare, and that they, as citizens, have a right to free use of it so long as they do not transgress the rights of others desiring to use the street.

But there is a limit beyond which occupation of a public thoroughfare becomes a nuisance; and surely that limit is reached when a group of "picketers," men or women, persist in parading back and forth, hour after hour, from morning to night, directly in front of a man's house, with no possible purpose in view other than to annoy or torment or coerce him into doing something that his conscience tells him he should not do.

That is "picketing," and the principle involved in it—whether the picketing be done by a band of woman suffragists, or by a body of political fanatics, and regardless of the objective in view—is identically the same as that involved in blackmail.

Suppose the organized meat packers, for instance, or the so-called "steel trust," wanted President Harding to do something for them that he did not want to do; and they were to employ a band of "picketers" to "camp on his trail," patrol the streets surrounding the white house grounds or otherwise annoy and hector him and his household until he finally yielded to the demands made upon him—what would the socialists brethren say to that?

The answer is better imagined than expressed. Yet the streets of Washington are public, and the packers and the steel magnates have as much right on them as have the socialists who want the president to liberate certain convicts whom the law says ought to remain in prison.

There is a legal and orderly way by which to do anything that ought to be done.

If Debs and his fellow "politicals" ought to be liberated, there is an orderly and legal way by which to present that fact, on its merits, to the authorities empowered to turn them loose.

"Picketing" nor threatening nor bull-dozing is not that way!

It should not be countenanced; and if there is no law by which to prevent this silly, un-American and detrimental practice, one should be enacted and put into operation.

Uneasy lies the head that hasn't figured its income tax.

Dr. Long First Applied Anesthesia at Jefferson

Editor Constitution: It seems a strange story to where Dr. Crawford W. Long was living and practicing medicine at the time he made his wonderful discovery of the anesthetic ether.

Several months ago I found it necessary to enter public print to correct the statement that this discovery was made at Athens, and now comes Mrs. W. P. Brunson, of Apalachicola, Fla., who under the caption: "Long and Gorrie Two Southern Physicians Who Won Immortality" in your issue of this date makes the statement that "abundant evidence exists to prove that this discovery was made by Dr. Crawford Long, Danielville, Ga."

And so again a pardonable pride in "my old home town" prompts me to call attention to the following facts:

That all medical records show that Dr. Crawford W. Long was living and practicing medicine at Jefferson, Jackson county, Georgia, in 1842 when he first used sulphuric ether as an anesthetic in removing a tumor from James M. Venable. That said operation was performed under an old mulberry tree on the "public square" in that city. That thousands of postcards bearing a picture of that tree have been sent all over the country and that a gavel made from it is in possession of the American Medical Society. That a monument commemorating the event stands on the square at Jefferson which was unveiled by the Georgia Medical Society several years ago the string which dropped the veil being pulled by Dr. Long's daughter, Mrs. Fanny Long Taylor.

That if course I—like that Mrs. Brunson was speaking in entirely good faith, but as stated above, having been born and reared in Jefferson, I am naturally desirous that all honors due her shall be hers. Hence the above. Yours very truly, SAM J. BELL, 41 Mansfield, avenue, Atlanta, Ga.

The Columbus Enquirer-Sun notes that the editor of The Cuthbert Leader wants to kill the robin because it will not sing in the winter, and The Enquirer-Sun says:

"The very idea of such a thing—wanting to kill the 'yank-mockin'-bird.' Doesn't the editor know that the robin is merely a winter tourist—or 'carpetbagger,' as he is used to be called—and that he is a laughing at home, when he returns north in the spring? Just try to kill a robin in the north, or in the presence of a northerner, and see what happens!"

Bits of New York Life

BY O. O. MCINTYRE.

New York, March 11.—New York likes to appear intellectually superior to the rest of the world—and then spend its time chuckling over cheap vaudeville jokes, and chuckling at its own vaudeville.

Yet any night a vaudeville accordionist will strike a few chords and remark: "My father is a very well read man. He knows the alchemical contents of every patent medicine in the drug store. The hilarious uproar will not subside for moments."

I like vaudeville, yes, even double-up with laughter at the burlesque Irishman in green whiskers and I do not think it is a thing of which to be ashamed. But a New Yorker, Simon Strunsky once remarked that New York should remove its intellect from its glass case.

It is no secret that a New York newspaper with a circulation of 1,000,000, with a metropolitan circulation built up with comic pictures in which a brick was thrown in the last picture, The Evening Post, the most carefully and ably edited newspaper in town, has the smallest circulation.

Every Arkubuck walking up Broadway will draw a larger crowd than a group of new pictures at the Metropolitan. Yet a mention of Arkubuck in any strictly New York gathering will cause a superior sniff of eyebrows. At a morning musicale at the Biltmore, the other morning a foreigner and lady asked a friend: "Who is this person, Mr. Chaplin?"

New York needs a blending of the aesthete and the roughneck to make it more human. Loud laughter except under the stimulus of home brew, is getting so it nearly drowns under the head wagons. Back in my town the man with the loudest laugh was the ray of sunshine at every party. Here he is no gentleman and they suspect that his father might have been in trade or failed to catch the mayflower on its initial trip.

The best slant on New York's intellectualism was revealed to me by a Madison avenue newsdealer. He had three copies of the Atlantic Monthly on an outer ledge. I picked one of them up. Tucked inside was a copy of Jim Jam Jams. In the others were hid copies of a scandal weekly. The three magazines were for three of his aristocratic customers.

Paderewski has said he will never play in public again. His hair is trimmed close and the pale features have undergone a great change. He looks like a serious-minded business man. He has admitted to New York reporters that most of his fortune is gone. He received no pay as diplomatist. For years he was an artist living in dreams. Today he faces the reality of a solvent reality. He is called upon the pianist after his arrival in America. He was told by the solvent reality of such an orchard. Paderewski was busy transplanting some orchid bulbs. The other day the same critic called up. Paderewski's voice announced that Mr. Paderewski was in a business conference.

Thomas Burke, the novelist, who writes so fascinatingly of the lime-house causeways down by the East India docks, is expected in New York shortly. He knows the interwoven edge of the London underworld and the Chinese quarter as few others and he has woven about them romance and poetry that have charmed readers all over the world. He is a very young man and shy and has asked that no entrance be given in his honor. He wants to explore New York's Chinatown—now a mere shell for rubber-neck wagons—and he may go to San Francisco to explore the Chinese quarters there.

Editor Constitution: Knowing that it is through the great press of our state and nation that good things are accomplished for the masses of our people, and realizing that the time has now come when the cotton growers of the south must take steps to protect their interest, and thereby protect the interest of our entire southland, I am enclosing you an article, which if put into execution will shake from our necks the yoke of depression and ultimate ruin which the Wall street gamblers seem to determine to place upon the cotton growing state in the union.

When I say a cotton bank I mean a bank that will handle the cotton situation entirely and not other products raised on the farm. We have many farmers' organizations and all of them accomplish great good.

Cotton is the south's recognized staple crop. It is the one crop upon which depends our prosperity or our downfall.

How can we organize a cotton bank in every cotton growing state? What would be the effect of such an institution on the Wall street gamblers in our cotton?

Our cotton growers will have to be told through our great press of the great good that would result from the establishment of such an institution. In a very short time, it would not be a question with the cotton gamblers as to what they would decide to give the cotton grower for his cotton, but they would first ask themselves, "What question, what is the attitude of the cotton banks of the south as to the price of cotton?"

We would have a fortification back of our cotton that the world would have to sit up and take notice of.

Every cotton grower in every state where cotton is grown would gladly join in the establishment of such a bank.

Suppose that every cotton grower had been for the past few years contributing a small amount for the maintenance and upbuilding of a bank. The amount not to exceed possibly $5.00 or $10.00 to the grower. Do you think for one moment that the cotton gamblers would have been able to keep their hands on the cotton?

No, sir; the situation would be reversed and the cotton gambler would be asking himself, "will the cotton banks sell at such a price?"

By the establishment of cotton banks in every cotton growing state, we would soon be in a position to take part in the cotton market and we would take for our cotton.

They would act as a stimulant to our young men to return to the farm, for they would then know that their cotton would be sold at a high price, and that their toil and efforts would not only be appreciated but would also result in the future.

If Priscilla Hadn't Popped

When young I was a shy lad,
And yet I liked the girls;
I couldn't keep from dangling round
Their dimples and their curls.

But the putting of the question—
My pulses flipped and hopped,
And I never would have married
If Priscilla hadn't popped.

That the girls are timid creatures
Is well enough for rhyme,
And that men do all the courting—
But they don't, sir, every time;

Many a man quite unsuspecting
By a female has been copped;
Sure he would never be married
If Priscilla hadn't popped.

Belief, I know, is common
When the heart is gone,
That she goes no further Than to lead the fellow on.

With an over cheek some blushes
And her modest eyelids dropped;
But, gosh, I'd never married
If Priscilla hadn't popped.

I don't mean I wasn't willing,
Nor wishing for her hand;
I dreamed of her at night,
I loved her—oh, my land!

But when I tried to tell her
I stammered and I stopped;
And I never would have married
If Priscilla hadn't popped.

Priss saw the situation
And she said to me one day:
"If the right girl loved and told you Would you give that girl away?"

Said I, "You bet I wouldn't!"
And on my breast she popped;
So you see I'd never married
If Priscilla hadn't popped.

Not Exactly the Psychological Moment to Gain Our Sympathy

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.
(Copyright, 1921, for The Constitution.)

IT'S ALL IN YOUR VIEWPOINT.

I have heard that every man has a price at which he will sell out. I do not believe it.

Some of us come to learn that we receive something very unusual and valuable when we were given life. And the chance to take hold upon it, and to make the most of it, is the "upper cut" of life. It is the job that many of us would sell out if the whole world were to be wrapped up in nice pink silk and handed to us as a free gift!

It's all in your viewpoint—whether you are bored by existence. Of course there are very many who were immediately dropped into the lap of misfortune, and to them who are more fortunate, should lead a ready hand.

But you who are looking for quick and easy fortune without the price to pay for it, there exists nothing but disappointment and gloom.

You can't get happiness in the same way that you do a meal in a public eating place. You have to take out happiness on a long time lease—and then if the plumbing is bad in the apartment, you just remember that that was one of the hidden expectations and go ahead and live.

Another thing—try and keep away from the game, the rules of which are not known to you and for which you have had no previous preparation or experience.

Then as life unfolds for you, you will see the beauties in it and great chances will keep looming as something for you to take part in.

Editor The Constitution: I wish to register my sincere appreciation of your stand on the Maddox matter.

It is an outrage upon a democratic people. I have nothing personally against Mr. Maddox. I am not interested in personal affairs of Mr. Maddox or Mr. Barrett, but I am interested in democratic form of government.

If he is elected in the regular way I will accept it, but all fair-minded people resent the proceedings of last Monday.

RAINY DAY FORECAST

Cloudy Weather Certain and May Continue Sunday.

"It's certain to be cloudy in Atlanta Saturday," said C. F. von Herrmann, forecaster, Friday, "and the chances are about even that it will rain, certainly Saturday doesn't stand a chance of being as likable and springish a day as we had Friday."

Cloudiness and probable rain may not stay with us over Sunday, but they will be in evidence before Saturday night, said Mr. von Herrmann, who can afford to rest easily for a day or so with the consolation that he has given the city wonderful weather for a few days, anyway.

RUSSIAN REVOLT
STILL UNDECIDED

Revolutionaries in Kronstadt Fortress Bombard Soviet Strongholds, While Uprising Spreads.

Washington, March 11.—Military domination in Petrograd, Moscow and other Russian cities is dependent more and more upon the success of the maneuvers for control of the food supply, according to analysis of conditions there made today by officials of the state department.

Summaries of the reports indicate that both the revolutionists and the bolsheviks are making every effort to maintain communication with the rural districts in order to satisfy both the troops and the non-fighting population. It was reported that the communist troops about Petrograd had demanded increased rations and the granting of them had the effect of increasing the disturbances in the civilian groups.

Have Enough Food. Revolutionists in charge of Kronstadt have announced that they had provisions enough to maintain their position and would appeal for outside aid only on behalf of the non-combatant civilians and children in the event of a prolonged struggle.

Petrograd, according to the advice to the department in view of the under siege, the bolsheviks having disposed troops along the main approaches to the city and inaugurated a policy of wholesale arrests of workmen and citizens who are suspected of sympathies with the revolutionists.

Vote for Revolution. Practically all of the workmen in Petrograd have voted to join the revolutionists, whose headquarters are at Kronstadt, although direct aid to Kronstadt is difficult because of bolshevik police and military domination. The workmen organizations are, however, it was added in the advice, in constant communication with Kronstadt.

According to a press statement issued by the Kronstadt revolutionists on March 8 which has been communicated to the state department, attacks made on the fortress of Kronstadt from both shores of the Gulf of Finland, were repulsed with considerable losses to the attacking bolsheviks. The attacks have not been resumed because of the necessity of the bolshevik command retaining its control at Petrograd.

Artillery fire from Kronstadt was said to have destroyed railroad connection between Petrograd and Oranienbaum, fires were reported to have broken out at several points along the coast.

FIGHTING RESUMED.

Stockholm, March 11.—The fight for Petrograd has again flamed up. Kronstadt's bombardment, which recommenced last night, continuing throughout the day. Intensely the firing surpassed all previous efforts. At Terioki, on the Russo-Finnish border, and other Finnish places, the ground was shaken and windows were shattered.

The Dagens Nyheter reports that Kronstadt last night, by means of electric light signals, demanded the immediate surrender of Krasnoye-Gorka, on pain of complete annihilation. During the day Krasnoye-Gorka made only feeble reply to the heavy fire from the battleships, Sebastopol and Petrovsk.

Since this morning Kronstadt has heavily shelled Krasnoye-Gorka and Krasnoye-Gorka has shelled Kronstadt, causing fires. Some of the coast batteries replied.

It is reported, but without confirmation, that the insurrection has spread to the Karelian peninsula, and that in the night the Finnish army has been employed. Russian Airmen Friday repeatedly flew over Finnish territory, according to the advice here.

The Dagens Nyheter, says the Dagens Nyheter, were bombarded Friday. Riots occurred, but details are lacking. Refugees arriving at the frontier today say that machine guns were used on the workers by the cadet officers sent to the fortress.

A new revolutionary newspaper, the Ivestia, has appeared at Kronstadt. It publishes an energetic resolution adopted by the soldiers of the fortress, appealing to the leaders to hold fast.

Surrender Reported. Late tonight the Finnish military experts at Kronstadt, that the drum fire of the fortress has had the effect of compelling the surrender of Krasnoye-Gorka.

The Finnish government has made a protest that bolsheviks are violating Finland's neutrality by flying over Finnish territory.
